

Tony Maxwell

Tony comes to the Bend ReStore with previous experience at the La Pine ReStore, and he's quick to say working for Habitat for Humanity is important to him. "Proud of being here" he asked to have his photograph include the ReStore sign.

Having previously worked in many trades including shipyards in Seattle, Tony considers the La Pine Habitat assignment his introduction to a job closely related to people.

His responsibility in Bend is to help keep materials in the ever-changing warehouse and outdoor yard organized, yet he speaks strongly of the broader picture of "helping people buy a house and the 'landfill issues' ... for community".

Tony finds all aspects of his job enjoyable but particularly finds satisfaction in making decisions on the run. He is guided by good advice to always do the best he can.

A resident of this area for 10 years, Tony enjoys local favorite activities including fishing and ATVing, that with his three daughters.
